QUICK FACT

HOMECOMING

The 2002 Homecoming celebration will be very similar to the celebration held by Wartburg students 50 years ago.

The 1952 Homecoming "Century to Century—Wartburg" featured Kastle Kapers, a parade led by armor-clad student body president John Kelly, a 14-12 Knight football victory over Buena Vista and an Artist Series performance by Eleanor Steber.

Yearlong celebration to conclude

By KACY BURG
Senior Writer

Many events are planned this week in celebration of Homecoming and the conclusion of Wartburg's yearlong Sesquicentennial celebration.

"It looks like we're going to have a really good turnout for Homecoming," said Jan Striepe, director of alumni and parent relations. "We're really excited."

Events begin Thursday with the first performance of the Kastle Kapers variety show in Neumann Auditorium at 8 p.m. and the crowning of Homecoming king and queen after the show. Then, at 10 p.m., there will be a pep rally in Knights Gymnasium.

The Alumni Art Exhibit will be held in the Waldemar A. Schmidt Gallery in the Fine Arts Center Thursday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Alumni Best-Shot Golf Tournament begins at 10 a.m. Friday.

The Business Career Directions and Connections Alumni Panels will take place in the Buckmaster Room, in the Whitehouse Business Center, between 10:45 a.m. and 4 p.m. Friday. Students will have the opportunity to meet and network with alumni who work in marketing, management, accounting/finance, international business and economics.

There will also be a women's soccer match against Loras College on the soccer field Friday at 4 p.m. and a second Kastle Kapers show at 8:30 p.m. in Neumann Auditorium.

Saturday's events open with registration for the Early Morning Knight Run/Walk at 8 a.m. in the Field House.

At 10 a.m. the Homecoming parade will

Students face additional Iowa Tuition Grant cuts

By TINA HINZ
Staff Writer

Iowa private college students who receive money from the Iowa Tuition Grant program face reductions of up to $500 in financial aid for the spring 2003 semester.

"We're sending letters out now to all students who will be affected to provide an advance notice of the anticipated cut," said Jen Sassman, Wartburg director of financial aid.

The Iowa College Student Aid Commission will review all of the state's private college rosters stating how many students each institution has that are eligible for grants. This will determine the obligation at hand for the available funds.

From Wartburg, there are 762 students on the Iowa Tuition Grant roster.

The program can provide a maximum of $2,000 per semester to Iowa students depending on their levels of need to make attending a private college or university more affordable. This spring the largest grant is proposed to reduce to $1,500.

"As soon as we know the exact reduced amount, we will revise award letters to adjust," Sassman said.

Statewide budget cuts have contributed to the $1.4 million decrease in this year's program funding. An increased number of students qualifying for state aid has further drained the program's account.

This is the second consecutive year Iowa's private colleges have experienced a financial aid reduction from the program. As cited in the Des Moines Register Oct. 3, need-based students saw a $250 decrease in their financial aid packages during the spring 2002 semester.

Executive director of the Iowa Student Aid Commission Gary Nichols told the Des Moines Register he doesn't anticipate more cuts to the program, although it is too soon to know for sure.

Last year, increasing Wartburg-sponsored financial aid was considered, but the impact on the college was too large.

"If private colleges decide to make up for the state cuts to the Iowa Tuition Grant program, we may never get that funding back. We need to be aware of the implications our actions can make," Sassman said.

Recipients of the grants need to be Iowa residents, have their annual Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) filled out and returned to the federal processor by the deadline and require estimated family contributions of $9,000 or less.

"As a college, we need to work together. I wish the cuts didn't have to happen, but hopefully the state of economy will improve," Sassman said. "We can show students various loan options and alternatives, and supervisors on campus are willing to increase the number of work-study hours."

Ninety-eight percent of Wartburg students receive some form of financial aid.

"The doors are always open in both the Controller's Office and Financial Aid Office," Sassman said. "Students are welcome to come in to discuss their financial situation, especially if they're having trouble making payments."

Vice president for enrollment management Edith Waldstein remains optimistic that the cuts will not affect enrollment numbers.

"I hope that students and their families will still see the value in investing in a college education. Many long-term benefits exist," Waldstein said.

Students with financial aid questions can call the Controller's Office at Ext. 8215 or the Financial Aid Office at Ext. 8262. Both are located in Luther Hall 212 and 217, respectively.

Caf dining declining?

Senior notices many changes during his 4-year stay at Wartburg

By STEVEN C. MURRAY
Columnist

As a senior, I finally feel that I have the right to go off on almost anything I so desire. With that in mind, there are some things that really need some work here at Wartburg. For the purposes of this column, and your sake, we will this week focus on only one aspect: Wartburg College Dining Services. That's right. This is going to be a caf-bashing that would make even Chris Thomas '01 proud.

Ah, I remember it well ... freshman year and 20 meals a week. How sweet it was. (Well, okay, I got fed, so I was happy.) At least the food was usually warm; they rarely ran out of Hawaiian Punch; and they could keep the 2 percent milk straight from the skim. Also, in a typical utensil picking, I only had to try once or twice to get a clean spoon as opposed to taking about five or so of each utensil and weeding out the dirty ones. The hamburgers used to be what they proclaimed, and the turkey tetrazine wasn't half bad either. Curly fries weren't soggy, and the grilled cheese wasn't burnt to a smoldering crisp. During the day, the television stations were set at the appropriate channels and KWAR was playing at night, with the televisions turned off.

Anymore, the good ol' caf is feeling a lot more like my high school cafeteria, when the "hamburgers" (soy patties) magically became different entrées from week to week. The first week it would be hamburgers, the next week those same burgers would evolve into Swiss steak, then Salisbury steak and finally sloppy joes. By the time they became sloppy joes, the lunch ladies were almost out of their rations of all-purpose burgermeal for the month.

So, in my eyes, the quality control has declined a bit since freshman year. The major problem is, of course, what to do with all the injustices of the caf? There are always steps one can take to make personal plights known with Dining Services staff, such as the little suggestion cards, but do they really work? I used to send in a bunch of those cards, but always to no avail.

The thing that gets me most is that Wartburg College, of all places, seems to be a place where money is the least of anyone's immediate concern. Before the Castle Room became a hardhat area, I had a few candlelight meals there—several of which were quite nice. I've also had some of the cheese and meat trays that Special Events provide for occasions, and they also are of excellent quality. So why is it that the meals in the caf are so terrible? After all, we are paying good money for them.

I realize that the Student Union is under heavy construction and that things will be different than they have in the past, but should there not be some sort of discount in our meals to make up for the decline in quality due to that construction?

And also, while we're talking about Dining Services woes, if anyone who is reading this is in charge of the invasion of Pepsi Blue into campus, could you please do something about that too? Yes, I know the stuff is free, but so is windshield wiper fluid.

Proactive citizens needed in society

By MATT TOWNSLEY
Columnist

I was once again awestruck while reading about the debacle involving firefighters in the city of Elgin, Iowa, and their right to store alcoholic beverages in the refrigerator of the city-owned fire station.

For those who are out of the loop, here's a quick synopsis. An Elgin City Council member contacted the city's insurance company after finding out the local firefighters were amassing beer at the station. The ultimatum she gave the fire department was to remove the beverages or the company would cancel insurance for the whole town. The firefighters quickly removed their stash, but as a result of the inquiry, firefighters have held the council member responsible for this change in policy. Most recently, the fire chief and his 20 crew members have all turned in letters of resignation stating their intentions unless the specific council member quits.

This situation blew my mind for two reasons. First, while any sane individual acknowledges firefighters have a right to drink alcohol, assuming they are of the legal age, what sort of example are these men and women setting for today's minors? Last time I checked, the teacher's lounge at the local school didn't have a single beer in the fridge. The public would be outraged if that were to happen. I believe the same precedent should apply to the Elgin Fire Department as well. If the fire chief wants to kick back and relax after a stressful day fighting blazes, he can take his crew downtown to the local restaurant or tavern.

Secondly, there is simply no need to have alcoholic beverages at the fire station. It is an accident waiting to happen. Not only is it logical to keep the workplace substance-free, but it's also mandated by their insurance company. I applaud the city council member's proactive investigation into the matter, but unfortunately it was not a popular move on her part.

Why does society today shun proactive thinkers? President Bush and his pre-emptive Middle East policy are drawing criticism throughout the country, yet many blame the government for not being "prepared enough" for Sept. 11. I realize it's a stretch to compare national politics to something like the Elgin situation, but as former Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill once said, "all politics are local."

The mindset of accepting the status quo except when things go wrong while simultaneously criticizing progressive thinkers is overwhelmingly contagious. Progressive-minded go-getters have brought so much good to our country, yet their philosophy is still in the minority.

My suggestion to Elgin firefighters is to cut their council member some slack. I believe she was looking out for the common good of the citizens of Elgin. Not only will the current policy set a better example for children, but I truly believe it will also make the fire department a better service for the entire community.

The next time you settle for the status quo, remember what the consequences could be.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

I would like share a response to the editorial on the present cheerleading situation.

Currently, I, along with a new group of girls, am working with the athletic department and the college on a new agreement. As of last Thursday, there is a new football cheerleading squad.

We will be cheering at the Pep Rally on Thursday, be in the parade on Saturday and then be cheering at the game Saturday afternoon. We will also be cheering at the final home games in November.

We are also working on adding a new aspect to the Wartburg College cheerleading program, a competition squad. This squad, under new rules and regulations, would be allowed to stunt and compete while on the designated safety mats. There will also be at least one basketball squad and quite possibly a wrestling squad.

Although it is taking some time, an agreement is being worked on between the cheerleaders and the athletics department/college. We, the cheerleaders, have a love for cheerleading and the college and want to cheer for the college but also want our sport to have all aspects included. Soon, a middle-ground will be reached between the two groups, and there will be cheerleaders at Homecoming! Go Knights!

Alumni to speak of experience in business

By SARA MONSON
Senior Writer

Wartburg's department of business and economics will host a panel of alumni speakers Friday in the Whitehouse Business Center.

The event, called "Career Directions and Connections," began in 1996 and aimed to help current students learn more about the business job market after graduation. This year boasts almost 100 returning alumni invited to share experiences.

Gloria Campbell, associate professor of business administration, said researching the current job market by means of the panel is helpful, especially in the current economic downfalls.

"Networking is always important, but this year it is more important than ever. With new job creation down and increasing layoffs, the job environment after graduation is challenging to say the least," Campbell said.

She said the future graduate needs an "in" in the career world, and the best place to get answers is in this panel. Students in attendance are encouraged to ask questions, share e-mail addresses and phone numbers and find out where former Wartburg students are working.

"All Wartburg students, whether they are business majors or not, should make it a point to connect to alumni who are back for homecoming weekend," Campbell said.

"The part I found most valuable about the panels were the tips or hints the panelists gave on how to become successful or at least how to get the best start straight out of college," he said. "I was also particularly interested in the differences recent graduates found between their expectations of life after college and reality."

If students are unable to attend the panel, Campbell recommends looking at the Pathways Center for more information about career opportunities and alumni contacts.

"Students can't wait for jobs to come to them; they have to be assertive," Campbell said. "Figure out your career direction and make the connections. And then volunteer to come back in a few years to help the next wave of Wartburg students."

The first panel begins Friday at 10:45 a.m. with the final panel beginning at 2:30 p.m. All students, business majors or not, are invited to attend.

Homecoming celebration to feature time capsule

begin on Bremer Avenue. Dorothy Bredow Bowen '53 and Joann Kilgus, the great-granddaughters of Wartburg's founder, Georg Grossmann, will be the parade marshals. There will also be a knight on a live horse in the parade, a tradition that Striepe said is both exciting and challenging.

"It's a very unique tradition to Wartburg that the parade is lead by a knight in armor, but it has its challenges," she said. "The horse has thrown the rider off two times in the past 28 years."

After the parade will be the Renaissance Faire on the central campus mall. There will be a variety of food available, including brats, pizza, rib sandwiches, shish kabobs, popcorn balls, ice cream, cookies and bottled water and pop. Between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., students on a board plan will be able to use their ID cards in the Visitors Center to get $4 in cash to use for lunch at the Renaissance Faire.

The Renaissance Faire will feature vendors with pottery, stoneware, stained glass, honey, plants, clothing, temporary tattoos and CDs of Wartburg's musical groups.

There will also be live entertainment, including three musicians, a puppet theater and knights giving demonstrations. In the event of rain, the Renaissance Faire will be held in the PEC lobby.

Wartburg class reunions begin at 11 a.m. Saturday, and the men's soccer team will take on Loras at 11:30 a.m. on the soccer field.

At 1 p.m. a time capsule containing artifacts from the Sesquicentennial year, including a Sesquicentennial T-shirt, an orange "Go Knights" T-shirt, Sesquicentennial programs, a Lutheran Book of Worship and a yearbook, will be sealed during a ceremony at the victory bell. The class of 2002 will open the capsule at its 50th reunion in 2052.

The football game against Coe College will kick off in Walston-Hoover Stadium at 1:30 p.m., and after the game there will be an Oktoberfest celebration in the Field House where students on a board plan can eat their evening meal.

Saturday night the Sesquicentennial Finale will be in Neumann Auditorium at 8. This conclusion to the yearlong celebration will feature the Wartburg Community Symphony and appearances by guest soloists, faculty soloists and the Wartburg Choir.

The Society of Collegiate Journalists/Communication Arts Open House will be held Sunday from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. in the McElroy Communication Arts Center.

Sunday at 10:30 a.m. there will be Homecoming Worship in Neumann Auditorium with the Wartburg Symphonic Band, Wartburg Choir, Castle Singers, Ritterchor, St. Elizabeth Chorale and Chapel Choir. Preludial music begins at 10 a.m.

Homecoming events will conclude Sunday at 1:30 p.m. with the Homecoming Concert by the Wartburg Symphonic Band and Wind Ensemble in Neumann Auditorium.

Professors release CD

By AMY SERFLATEN
Staff Writer

Eric Wachmann

Ted Reuter

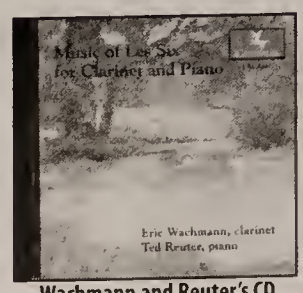
Two Wartburg College music professors released a CD internationally Oct. 1. "The Music of Les Six for Clarinet and Piano" includes music for clarinet and piano composed by a group of 20th Century French musicians. Members of the sextet produced music that was light and for easy listening.

Dr. Eric Wachmann and Dr. Ted Reuter started performing together in 1995 and since then have traveled throughout North America and Europe.

"Performing is an extension of what we do here," said Wachmann, associate professor of music. "It builds on the knowledge and in turn makes me a better teacher."

Performing the music was a highlight of recording the album for Wachmann.

"The most enjoyable part was learning the music and seeing the final product," he said. "It was an interesting project, and one of the pieces, 'Tailleferre's Menuet,' has never been performed or recorded before."



Wachmann and Reuter's CD

Wachmann and Reuter spent one year researching the music prior to recording.

"We did lots of research before we recorded," Wachmann said. "It only took us four days to record and one year to produce the final product."

The goals of the recording were artistic and not necessarily financial.

"We are not in it for the money," Wachmann said. "This CD was mainly just to do and to have fun with."

A Wartburg College grant funded a large part of the project. The proceeds from the CD go to cover the remainder of the production costs. Those interested can order the CD online at www.centaurrecords.com.

Because of this positive experience, Reuter and Wachmann are starting to research their next CD, which is expected to be released in May 2004.

Wachmann and Reuter will be performing in the Orchestra Hall Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Forensics team starts year with five places at UNI

By JESSICA NYSTEL
Staff Writer

The Wartburg College forensics team placed several times at the Oct. 5 competition at the University of Northeran Iowa.

Senior Katherine Hall received sixth place in communication analysis, and junior Emily Stoltman earned fifth place in program oral interpretation and sixth place in drama.

The 11-person team consists of five upperclassmen and a "good looking crop of first-years," adviser Dr. Penni Pier said. This number more than doubles last year's team, which was comprised of five people.

Depending on the tournament, Pier said each person may be competing against 20 to 50 people in each category.

The forensics team has outlined goals for the year, one of which Pier said the team has already accomplished.

"We've already achieved our goal to grow and get more students," said Pier.

Other goals included hosting a tournament, which will take place Jan. 18-19, and being "more consistent and keep developing skills," Pier said.

The team competed in Winona this weekend. Results were not available at press time.

Security searches lots for potential targets

By BECCA ANDERSEN
Senior Writer

Wartburg College security is taking another step to help stop the string of car break-ins that has occurred since school started.

John Myers, director of campus security and safety, said security has even taken steps to inform students if they leave things in their cars. A couple nights last week security went through lots looking in windows of cars and leaving warning tickets on cars that could be targets.

Security found at least 53 cars with things left in them, including CD players and CD cases, roller blades, a VCR, binoculars, Discman CD players, radar detectors, a bike, golf clubs, a guitar and a case that looked like it could hold CDs or a laptop computer. Security then sent e-mails to the students informing them that their car contained things that the thief or thieves have been targeting.

Myers said what concerned security the most was not what they found in the cars, but that no one called during the three hours they were searching the lots.

Students are encouraged to contact security immediately if they see something suspicious in any of the lots, and to remove valuables from their car. Myers said even though some students detach the faceplate of the CD player, the suspect has broken windows and searched inside the car to find the faceplate.

There have been a total of 13 break-ins, eight in N lot and five in D lot. Eight thefts occurred on the same day, with at least two of those happening in broad daylight at approximately 11 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The thief targets such things as CD players with faceplates attached, CDs, CD cases and radar detectors. Myers estimates that there are at least two students that have lost over $1,000 in CDs. Myers said security and the police are paying close attention to the lots but can't be there 24 hours a day.

Many students wonder why Wartburg doesn't install security cameras in the lot. Myers said he would like to—and is in the process of talking to a vendor—but there would be issues implementing them.

Myers's first concern would be the number of cameras needed to cover all of the lots. The configuration of some of the lots makes it hard to set up cameras to cover all the needed area. On the perimeter of D lot alone, there would need to be at least 12 cameras, not counting the cameras needed to cover each of the eight rows. N lot would have the same problem.

The second concern would be that if there are cameras they would need to be monitored, and there are currently no offices open 24 hours a day, so there would be no one to watch the cameras. Myers said taping activity in the lots could be an option, but that also can cause problems.

"Word gets out quick if someone is watching the cameras or not," Myers said. "It would be very easy for someone to wear a mask when they break in to a car; that way they can't be identified." Also, Myers said that if there is a physical attack in one of the lots, there is a false idea that if the person can hold the attacker off, security will come because they assume someone is watching the camera.

"The recommendation of most primary insurance companies is that you shouldn't have security cameras if you can't monitor them 24 hours because there is the possibility of being sued if they are not watched," Myers said.

To cover one 24-hour position takes a minimum of five people, and someone would need to be here during holidays and breaks as well.

"It would require a major change in personnel and staffing," Myers said.

Myers did say that a fence around the lots, while not the most attractive, is something he is also considering implementing.

Knights ruffle Peacock feathers

By LANCE RIDPATH
Sports Writer

Wartburg football continued its winning ways Saturday as the Knights rolled up 457 yards of offense en route to a 42-7 mauling of Upper Iowa University.

The Knights jumped to a 10-0 lead after scoring on their first two possessions. Junior receiver Mike Nissen hauled in a 30-yard touchdown pass, and sophomore kicker Jordan Maus nailed a 32-yard field goal.

With nine minutes left in the second quarter, junior defensive lineman J. J. Zearley picked off a pass and gave the Knights first and goal on the Peacock 37 yard line. Three plays later, senior quarterback Jake Olsen hit wideout senior Ben Ford on a 19-yard scoring strike. Maus' extra point made it 17-0.

Wartburg came out rusty at the start of the third quarter. After a penalty for an illegal block on a punt return, the Knights started their second drive on their own 21. A few plays later, Upper Iowa linebacker Jimmie McCray jarred the ball loose from the Wartburg ball carrier and ran it back for a TD to cut the Knights' lead to 16 points.

In the closing seconds of the third quarter, junior wide receiver Chris Winter caught a pass from Olsen. The Knights took a 29-7 lead and never looked back.

Wartburg hit paydirt twice more in the fourth quarter. A shanked punt by the Peacocks gave the Knights possession at the UIU 40-yard line. On a key fourth down play, junior running back Jake Flanders carried the ball off-tackle, found a seam and rumbled 32 yards for the score.

With six minutes to go, the Knights took the ball again with short field position. On third-and-five, Flanders pounded his way into the endzone from 13 yards out. The touchdown put the Knights up for good, 42-7.

Coming off of three straight wins over tough opponents, head coach Rick Willis was concerned about the focus of his team heading into the game.

"We tried everything we could to make sure we were ready to go," said Willis. "Overall, I'd say we did a good job staying focused."

Jake Olsen completed 13 of 19 passes for 183 yards and three touchdowns. Chris Winter pulled in four passes for 32 yards with one TD. Receiver Mike Nissen also had a big day, raking in four catches for 80 yards and one TD. Junior tailback Brad Hodapp led the ground attack by picking up 156 yards on 25 carries.

MAKING A CUT—Junior tailback Brad Hodapp runs through a hole Saturday against Upper Iowa University.

The Wartburg defense held Upper Iowa to 47 yards rushing on 32 attempts. The Knights also picked off three passes and compiled 11 tackles for loss.

Next week, Wartburg (5-0 overall, 4-0 IIAC) faces Coe College in the Homecoming game at 1:30 p.m. The Kohawks are 4-1 and showcase running back Frederick Jackson, the 2001 IIAC Player of the Year.

"We have to play smart football, and we can't make mistakes," said Willis. "It will take no superhuman effort to be successful; we just need to play our football."

Tennis seventh in IIAC tourney

By NICK PETAROS
Sports Writer

The season ended on a positive note for the Wartburg women's tennis team as it defeated Upper Iowa and Buena Vista on its way to a seventh place finish at the Iowa Intercollegiate Athletic Conference tournament.

The conference tournament, held at Coe College in Cedar Rapids, had matches played indoors and outside due to unpredictable weather conditions.

The first match of the tournament paired No. 8 seed Wartburg against the No. 9 seed Upper Iowa University. Sophomore Sarah Kammerer and junior Kelly Dotson, and senior Anna Johnson and freshman Tomoko Shibuya won by identical 8-1 scores in the No. 1 and 2 doubles matches to get the Knights rolling.

In singles, Dotson, Warren, Shibuya and junior Lori Hammerand all won their matches, completing a convincing 7-0 win over the Peacocks.

After the decisive win over Upper Iowa, the Knights dropped their next two matches to Cornell College and Simpson College, respectively.

After losing to Simpson, the Knights attempted to avenge an earlier loss to the Buena Vista in the 7th place match.

"We were disappointed after a tough loss to Simpson," said senior Anna Johnson. "We really wanted to beat Buena Vista."

Against the Beavers, the Knights won two of three doubles matches taking a 2-1 lead into singles play.

Super tie-breaker wins by Johnson and Dotson proved to be enough for the Knights as they took the match 6-3. Wins by Shibuya and Kammerer contributed to the winning effort, recording a 6-3 win for the Knights.

"Everyone was a fighter out there," stated Johnson after the victory. "We never gave up and we were able to come from behind to win most of our matches."

"I feel really good about the progress we made this year, the team could be among the top five in the conference next year," said Johnson. "I think Coach Willis has done a great job and has the program going in the right direction."

Buttry wins by 50 seconds; teams third and fifth

By JORDAN DRACKLEY
Sports Writer

Saturday, Wartburg cross-country teams got a sample of what to expect at the end of the season.

The women took third with 113 points while the men finished fifth with 160 at the pre-national event at St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn., the location of the Nov. 23 national meet.

Sophomore Missy Buttry guided the women by winning the individual title. She ran the 6K in 22 minutes 3 seconds and beat the second place finisher by 50 seconds.

"The second- and third-place finishers are multi-time All-Americans," Johnson said. "For Missy to beat them by 50 seconds was a standout performance."

Competing against eight nationally ranked teams on both sides, plus wet and slippery conditions, made for a tough day.

"We've been working hard, but we can do better. We need to show more intensity," said head coach Steve Johnson.

Senior Gretchen Graham took 26th in 24:08, and junior Jenni Janssen and sophomore Jannae Holubar virtually tied with 27th- and 28th-place finishes, respectively, in 24:11.

Johnson said that Graham made a nice step up.

"My hamstring has been holding me back and it finally felt good," said co-captain Graham. "It was just the right type of course.

"We know what we have to do now for the national meet, and we're looking forward to conquering St. Olaf's course with Wartburg domination across the board," she added.

Johnson compared the women's finish to other teams in the Iowa conference and acknowledged the caliber of competition.

"Luther was eighth with more than twice our points, and Loras was 14th with more than three times our points," he said. "So we are still competing with the best teams in the nation even on an off-day."

The Knights are still ranked third in NCAA Div. III.

Senior Tyson Keith, despite sickness, led the men's team with a ninth place finish in the 8K in 26:31. Senior Joe Hughes earned the 13th spot in 26:44 and junior Tate Behning took 21st in 26:53. Sophomores Josh Moen (27:22) and Jeff Davis (27:49) finished 46th and 71st, respectively.

"We were right in the middle of a very close race," said Johnson. "We were tentative on our start, but the top three had good come-from-behind type races."

Johnson also noted the accomplishments of freshman Keith Solverson (97th in 28:17), who caught up to senior Nick Betts, and senior Joel Tuttle (153rd in 29:03), who has been running very competitively.

The men's team is still eighth in Div. III.

Wartburg will compete at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the UW–La Crosse Invite.

Improvement still main goal for Knights volleyball squad

By COREY ARNDT
Sports Writer

No. 15-ranked Wartburg swept Millikin and beat Dubuque in five games Saturday to conclude the Illinois Wesleyan Tournament with a two-day record of 3-1.

The Knights won their first match of the tournament in three games Friday against Westminster. In the second match, they lost to host team Iowa Wesleyan in five games.

Sophomore outside hitter Ranae Grafft did not believe the Knights played their best game against Iowa Wesleyan.

"We kind of lost focus throughout some of the games and didn't put it together," Grafft said.

The Knights still have a number of important matches left this season with conference games against Coe, Central, Simpson and Dubuque coming up in the next few weeks.

"We still have the toughest part of the season left," senior setter Angie Hulse said. "Our goal will definitely be to improve."

Wartburg defeated Upper Iowa Tuesday in three games 30-15, 30-19, 30-22, out-hitting them in every game. Junior outside hitter Dia Dohlman led the attack with 15 kills and 12 digs.

Wartburg improved their record to 20-5 overall this weekend and still remains unbeaten in the conference with a record of 5-0. Wartburg will return to conference action this week with a home match against Coe Wednesday starting at 7:30 p.m.

Goalkeepers earn shutouts

By ADAM HARRINGA
Sports Writer

The Knights men's and women's soccer teams traveled to Storm Lake Saturday and swept Buena Vista University, recording shutouts in both games.

The men snuck by BV 1-0 while the women's team won soundly, 4-0.

On the men's side, sophomore forward Verne Houston recorded Wartburg's lone goal with only four minutes left in the second period.

Wartburg fired 19 shots to BV's 11, including 14 in the second period for the Knights.

"We had opportunities to score, but we didn't connect on a lot of them," freshman forward Scott Hill said. "Luckily we came away with the victory."

Collin Lane had 5 saves and recorded his fifth shutout of the season. Wartburg improved to 6-4-1 overall and 3-3 in the conference.

Katie Rapp recorded a hat trick on the women's side in the Knights' win. Sara Phillips also had a goal for Wartburg.

The women's game wasn't much of a contest as the Knights had 24 shots on goal while not allowing BV any. The women improved to 9-4 overall and 3-3 in the IIAC.

Thursday the Wartburg men and women lost to Luther 0-5 and 0-4, respectively.

Wednesday Wartburg is at home to face Central. The women's game starts at 2 p.m. with the men to follow at 4 p.m.

The women play host to Loras at 4:30 p.m. Friday. The men celebrate Homecoming with an 11:30 a.m. game against Loras Saturday.
